Canada's online shopping landscape just got better. After years of having physical stores in Canada, Zara is finally allowing us to shop online.

As of tomorrow -- March 6 -- you can officially shop online at Zara.com in the Great White North, where you will be delivered treasures from the Spanish retailer (for free, if your order is over $50). A full range of women's, men's, and children's clothing will be available, and pricing will be identical to what you see in stores.

The return and exchange policy will also be similar (with options to exchange/return at store level and via mail), and you can pay by usual means.

All in all, it's a pretty sweet deal -- and even sweeter because you can shop Zara without changing out of your pajamas. Best.
