

March 6, 2013

Fashion news: Zara launches online shopping in Canada

By Kate Daley

Starting today, Zara will be launching online shopping in Canada. The Spanish retailer, that first opened its doors in Canada in 1999, is known for delivering runway looks at realistic prices.

If you're not one for braving fashion mobs during sale season or you're simply looking to snag that coveted blazer flying off the shelves, now all you really have to do is lift a finger (and pay the subsequent credit card bill).

Not only can you shop for your husband or your little one online, the retailer is offering free standard delivery and returns across the country and the products sold on the site are at the same prices as in store.

You can even shop on your mobile device with Zara's app. It also lets you scan the bar code of an item in-store to see if it's available online in your size. (Zara, you are rocking my world right now!)

Get shopping and get inspired with some of our favourite pieces available now:

For wedding season:

We love this "Pantone colour of the year" frock paired with black, gold and nude.

Gathered dress, $60. Bag, $60. Heels, $60. All Zara.

Dinner with friends:

Rock this black box sleeve coat with a pair of fuchsia trousers and a statement necklace.

Coat, $160. Necklace, $46. Trousers, $60. All Zara.