Get excited, Canada! Zara is launching its Canadian e-commerce website this Wednesday March 6, and from what we've gathered, it's sure to make the online shopping experience even better. The new online store will be found at Zara.com, and it will sell the entire range of clothing found in Zara's 22 Canadian stores (Read: if you don't live near a Zara location, you can have the wears delivered countrywide).

The clothing and accessories retailer is known for designing on-trend fashions at a decent price point, and with that in mind we can confirm that the e-commerce prices will be the same as item prices in store. Worried about buying the wrong size? Zara is making returns and exchanges easy. According to the press release, the online return and exchange policy will be the same as Zara stores, and shoppers can return online purchases to their local store or have them picked up at their home.

Check out Zara.com on March 6th to see the new online shopping website!
