

My Zara.com Surprise

Posted by Dani on March 8, 2013

Well, it's not really a surprise, because I ordered it a few days ago. But getting fashion delivered to your door instead of things like mail, or printer cartridges from Staples, FEELS like a surprise. So much fun!

I was invited to preview the new Zara online store. I chose a few tops for layering with my new black skinny pants – easy basics I need for an upcoming trip (more on that later). I could get used to this kind of armchair shopping – a few clicks and then a package was on its way. The site was easy to search and navigate, and the service was prompt. This is what arrived at my door 2 days later:

This was dangerously easy. And fun! Check out their lookbook for some spring inspiration.
