

Zara Launches Online Shopping for Canadians

Monday, March 4, 2013

Ok peeps, on March 6th you need to be at your computer with credit card in hand. Why? Because Zara is launching its online store in Canada, with delivery to the entire country. YAY! I love me some online shopping.

You'll be happy to hear that the online shops prices will be identical to those in Zara's stores (I hate it when there is a difference, don't you?), and the return and exchange policy will be the same too. And I appreciate being able to return items to my local store or have them picked up from my home—so convenient.

I am not a fan of changing rooms so shopping online is perfect for me. If it doesn't fit, I just send it on back. And no more using up my entire lunch hour lining up at the cash register; now I can fatten up my wardrobe in minutes. (The Hubster is going to have a semi freakout when he reads this. It's ok, honey, really.) 😊

Will you be clicking through to www.zara.com on March 6th?